  - c. Reports of abuse will be forwarded to the Executive Director, the resident's legal representative, the Director of Nursing/Wellness Director, the attending physician.
3. Associates will recognize that some cases of abuse are not directly observed, understanding resident outcomes of abuse could assist in identifying whether abuse is occurring or has occurred. Possible indicators of abuse include, but are not limited to:

2. In the event a staff member is found guilty of abuse or neglect in a court of law, the information will be reported to the appropriate registry or licensing authority.
3. The Executive Director will analyze all occurrences to determine if changes are needed to policies and procedures to assist in preventing further occurrences.

Coordination with QAPI

The facility is responsible for developing written policies and procedures that define how staff will communicate and coordinate situations of abuse, neglect, misappropriation of resident property, and exploitation with the QAPI program.

Cases of physical or sexual abuse, for example by facility staff or other residents, always require corrective action and tracking by the QAPI Committee.

The QAPI Committee will determine the following:

- If a thorough investigation is conducted;
- Whether the resident is protected;
- Whether an analysis was conducted as to why the situation occurred;
- Risk factors that contributed to the abuse (e.g., history of aggressive behaviors, environmental factors); and
- Whether there is further need for systemic action such as:
  - Insight on needed revisions to the policies and procedures that prohibit and prevent abuse/neglect/misappropriation/exploitation,
  - Increased training on specific components of identifying and reporting that staff may not be aware of or are confused about,

DEFINITIONS OF ABUSE

Abuse means the willful infliction of injury (the individual must have acted deliberately, not that the individual must have intended to inflict injury or harm), unreasonable confinement, intimidation, or punishment with resulting physical harm, pain or mental anguish.

The interpretive guideline takes a confusing step by adding the definition of neglect (which is legally defined as two separate issues) to the definition of abuse, when it says, "this also includes the deprivation of an individual, including the caretaker, of goods or services that are necessary to attain or maintain physical, mental, and psychosocial well-being." It takes a stronger step when it implies that an abusive act will be deemed abusive even if the resident cannot presume that instances of abuse of all residents, even those in a coma, cause physical harm, pain, or mental anguish." Also, note that the operative word here is "willful," not accidental acts, nor acts by residents who lack mental capacity/competence.

Verbal abuse is defined as the use of oral, written, or gestured language that willfully includes disparaging and derogatory terms to residents or their families, or within their hearing distance regardless of their age, ability to comprehend, or disability. An example of verbal abuse is saying things to frighten a resident, such as telling a resident that he/she will never be able to see his/her family again.

The act will be considered an abuse if it is considered abusive or "wrong" in the community, not whether the resident "tells" us that they were harmed in some way.

Sexual abuse includes, but is not limited to sexual harassment, sexual coercion, or sexual assault. Sexual Abuse is non-consensual sexual contact of any type with a resident.

This policy and procedure is not intended to replace the informed judgment of individual physicians, nurses or other clinicians nor is it intended as a statement of prevailing community standards or minimum standards of practice. It is a suggested method and technique for achieving optimal health care, not a minimum standard below which residents necessarily would be placed at risk.

A way to note sexual abuse is to think, “If that person did that to my daughter, or my mother, would I be offended? If you would, you might well have an abusive situation. In addition, this definition does not apply to actions between consenting adults, who understand the consequences of their actions, and are not abusing the rights of others. If you have a cognitively impaired resident, you must seek approval from the legal or surrogate decision maker.

Physical abuse includes hitting, slapping, pinching, and kicking. It also includes controlling behavior through corporal punishment. Corporal punishment includes, but is not limited to, pinching, spanking, slapping of hands, flickering, or hitting with an object.

Mental abuse is the use of verbal or nonverbal conduct which causes or has the potential to cause the resident to experience intimidation, fear, shame, agitation, or degradation. May also include but is not limited to, humiliation, harassment, threats of punishment or deprivation.

Involuntary seclusion is defined as the separation of a resident from other residents or from her/his room or confinement to her/his room (with or without roommates) against the resident’s will, or the will of the resident’s legal representative.

The interpretive guideline provides some extra clarification when it says, “it does not include temporary separation, for a limited time, as a therapeutic intervention until a care plan can be developed to meet the resident’s needs. It, also, does not include placement on a specialized unit, if the resident’s needs require such services, and is in accord with the resident, surrogate, or representative who was involved with the placement decision.” The guideline also places a time measurement on what would be considered a temporary cooling-off period when they state “temporary separation is an emergency short-term intervention (i.e., less than 24 hours).”

It is a suggested method and technique for achieving optimal health care, not a minimum standard below which residents necessarily would be placed at risk.*

Neglect means failure to provide goods and services necessary to avoid physical harm, mental anguish, or mental illness.

The interpretive guideline also includes the concepts of inappropriately monitoring and supervising when it further explains, “neglect occurs when facility staff fails to monitor and/or supervise the delivery of resident care and services to assure that care is provided according to resident need.” Additionally, the word “willful” is not part of the definition, so even unintended lack of service that causes harm will be deemed neglect.

Neglect is a staff member failing to carry out duties as indicated in the resident’s plan of care. These circumstances of neglect may be considered with unrelieved pain, avoidable pressure injuries, poor grooming, avoidable dehydration, lack of incontinence care, or malnourishment.

Misappropriation of resident property means the deliberate misplacement, exploitation, or wrongful, temporary, or permanent use of a resident’s belongings or money without the resident’s consent. The act must be found to be deliberate to fit this definition. In addition, it includes acts by individuals other than facility staff such as misuse of trust funds by family.

Catastrophic Reaction occurs when a situation or stimulus is perceived by the individual as stressful and overloads the person’s mental ability to cope. The overload results in an exaggerated response that may present as combative behavior, screaming, making irrational accusations, or becoming very agitated or extremely emotional.

Harm is a negative outcome that has compromised the resident’s ability to maintain or reach the highest practicable physical, mental, or psychosocial wellbeing as defined by an accurate and comprehensive resident assessment, plan of care, and provision of services.

  - Unusual occurrences and accident reporting (licensed nursing staff).
  - How and when to report to their supervisor, precursor behavior (that may escalate into abuse) or uncomfortable situations that are perpetrated on them by residents, peers, family members or others involved with the resident (all staff).
  - Abuse reporting procedures and specific needs of residents in a temporary assignment (company staff who are assisting sister facilities).
4. The facility will provide auxiliary education for those additional individuals involved with the resident.

The interpretive guideline suggests that we also ensure that others involved with the resident are knowledgeable about what abuse is and how to report any such concerns. This may be achieved through the following educational efforts:

- Volunteer orientation regarding abuse and the reporting of abuse.
- For contracted professionals from outside agencies who have not had training regarding abuse, neglect and misappropriation of resident property.
- Resident Council and Family Council (or other structured family education function) regarding what is abuse towards residents and staff and the reporting procedures for such.
- Through written information to be included during the admission process, for resident and family education. Such information will be provided in a language that they can understand (or through interpretation).

ABUSE TRAINING

1. The facility will train each employee regarding these policies.

The interpretive guideline identifies what components should be covered during any training with the staff. Include these components in the training planned for your facility:

- What constitutes abuse, neglect, and misappropriation of resident property?
- How to report their knowledge related to allegations without fear of reprisal.
- When and to whom to report their knowledge of related allegations.
- How to recognize signs of burnout, frustration, stress and outside factors (e.g., animal abuse) that may lead to, or be an indicator of potential abuse.
- Appropriate interventions to deal with aggressive and/or catastrophic reactions of resident's other staff, family members, or involved individuals.

2. The facility will ensure that such training is provided during orientation and annually and more often as determined by the facility.

The facility may find it helpful to establish a practice of providing such training:

- At the time of hire, through the review of the employee handbook, code of conduct, and state related materials.
- During facility orientation.
- No less than annually.
- When assessments of the supervisory staff or Quality Committee identify a lack of staff competency regarding abuse and the reporting of abuse.

3. The facility will provide ancillary training regarding related policies and procedures.

These written policies must include, but are not limited to, the following components:

- Screening
- Training
- Prevention
- Identification
- Investigation
- Protection
- Reporting/response

The facility may have to ensure that staff are also trained on the following “systems,” if the Abuse Prohibition effort is going to be fully functional:

- How to conduct an investigation (supervisory staff).
  - Grievance procedures (all staff).
  - Unusual occurrences and accident reporting (licensed nursing staff).
  - How and when to report to their supervisor, precursor behavior (that may escalate into abuse) or uncomfortable situations that are perpetrated on them by residents, peers, family members or others involved with the resident (all staff).
  - Abuse reporting procedures and specific needs of residents in a temporary assignment (company staff who are assisting sister facilities).

EXAMPLE INSERVICE TRAINING FOR GENERAL STAFF MEETING:

Purpose

The interpretive guidelines require that facility staff be trained on:

- What constitutes abuse, neglect, and misappropriation of a resident's property.
- How to report their knowledge related to allegations without fear of reprisal.
- To whom to report their knowledge of related allegations and when to report such events.
- How to recognize signs of burnout, frustration, stress that may lead to, or be an indicator of potential abuse.
- Interventions to address aggressive and/or catastrophic reactions of residents, other staff, family members, or other involved individuals.

Materials Needed

- "Signs of Stress"
- "As Stress Builds"
- "Responses"

Process

- Welcome attendants
- Give introduction to the material

Today we are going to talk about what happens when we experience "unhealthy" stress.

If you are wondering why the focus is on stress, it is because if stress builds, unchecked, it may lead to a person getting so frustrated, or burned-out that they may react in a manner that can be viewed as abusive.

We are also going to talk about things you can do if confronted by someone who is experiencing stress that may result in negative reactions.

Ask:

How can you tell if someone is experiencing stress?

Explain:

We all have stressful days or even a bad week. A group of professionals in psychology, law enforcement, and long-term care developed a list of "signs" of stress that should be observed for as they may mean that the person needs help in reducing their stress or learn ways of managing the stress.

“Signs of Stress”- Walk through the different signs, giving examples if possible. Emphasize the last paragraph.

Remember, a person may experience some of these signs, and never abuse anyone – but if this level of frustration, agitation, and despair continues to build – so does the risk of negative outcomes.

Ask the group:

Why do you think that abuse in any form cannot be tolerated in the facility?

Solicit answers from the audience.

Show “As Stress Builds” and walk through:

- The definitions of abuse.
- Examples of abuse.

How abuse may get more violent, dangerous, and hurtful as the stress builds.

Examples:

- A resident.
- A family member.
- A staff member.
- Other visitor (i.e., volunteer, contract employee, etc.).

In addition, the law says that we have to prohibit abuse no matter who is involved.

So let us look at some general steps that you can take to respond to an aggressive or abusive person.

Show the “responses” and walk through:

- The steps.
- The reporting procedures.

Ask for questions.

Signs of Stress:

The following behaviors are possible signs or clues that a person's stress level is building
